“Poet Servant” author Alexander James Gagin has been writing professionally since the age of 23. He’s penned 1 life-play-life, 15 original film scripts, 4 original film treatments, 4 tv show bibles and pilot scripts, 72 original songs, dozens of free lance columns and tens of thousands of internet posts. All with varying degrees of critical and financial success.

He’s also a husband, father and dog owner, living in marital bliss somewhere in Michigan, but the one constant in his life is that he remains an insatiable and hyper-creative writer of captivating characters stories and projects.

Profile is not an inaccurate word to describe, Alexander.

You see, Alexander loves to write. Really craves it. Be it on napkins, white boards, laptops, phones, even children’s art supplies... if the muse hits him, know he’ll be writing something—somewhere—day and freakin’ night!

Maybe he writes to understand himself or just chase impossible dreams until they become so. Either way, he hopes you enjoyed your journey through his unusual life. Wasn’t always fun, but it sure made for a damn interesting ride... best of all... it was 100% real!
